5 ▼ They may have let the first group in for the fear mongering. The rest of us they smashed our hands, tased us, and sprayed us for the crime of standing at the railing yelling. Then we got pissed and started to push. Then they ran up the stairs and we followed, and I think God the guys on the left of the building were able to turn their flank so those of us on the right were able to push up the stairs, allowing the capture the second tier and start knocking on the Capitol Building doors.

Rush Limbaugh rebukes those calling for an end to the unrest by TheAliensareFake

Honestly, the guys breaking the windows weren't Antifa. They were Patriots trying to find a new way in so we could flank the cops who were holding the doorway. Some chode had stalled everyone out saying he had an "announcement" that amounted to "if we quit pushing the cops will quit beating us" Basically surrender. If that asshat hadn't stalled our momentum, the cops wouldn't have been able to reinforce their position and we would have occupied the Capitol.

That fucktard put the last knife in the bleeding corpse of Liberty in this country. I'm pretty sure he was some deepstate bootlicker since he wasn't covered in spray and looked nice and clean, unlike us Patriots that were fighting.

What happened Wednesday is what needs to be done again and again. I'm not talking about those bitches that were just let in, I'm talking about those of us who got pissed when the cops started bashing hands and pepper spraying people who were only talking and shouting.

I mean, we have the right. It's in the 2nd Paragraph of the Declaration of Independence.

"... it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed."

1 I would love to find the super clean scarfed guy that just had to make an announcement just as we were taking back the ground we lost in the doorways. The cops used that time to reinforce their position that was about to be overrun and opening the capitol up to us. That dude was the last knife into the bleeding body of the Republic. He is also responsible for the death and injuries caused by the subsequent dog pile fall down the stairs. If we hadn't lost the momentum because of him, we would have taken the capitol and the dog pile would have never happened because we had enough room to push without needing help from below.

My right hand knuckles are broken and my ring finger crushed for the crime of placing it on the rail while I talked to a cop I knew was a soldier, reminding him of his duty to refuse unlawful orders. After a few more of us had been attacked and sprayed for no reason we began pushing the rails and eventually fought our ways to the doors of the Capitol and began knocking on their door.

So 5 People Died on 1/6? by NaughtLightly

Those 3 others weren't pushed off by cops, at least not pushed off the ledge on the 3rd tier. One man had a heart attack while we were pushing the doorway (I was immediately behind him and to his right when we pulled back to give room to start compressions on him. Thankfully the cops understood what was going on and didn't press forward. They got EMS on him and pulled him behind their lines.

The other man who died had a stroke after receiving a lethal strike with a baton across his temple. They were dishing those lethal strikes out hardcore that afternoon. I got hit twice in the temple and once in the carotid, and the only reason I'm still here is that my God was sheltering me.

The third death was a woman. I don't know for certain if she was crushed when the cops pushed us and caused a huge dog pile after everyone fell down the stairs in front of the entrance, or if she was trampled after most panicked after the guard opened up with their military grade CS. Most of us were trying to keep everyone calm, but panicked people are hard to control.

4 The first group of people who entered where ushered in by the cops. I was not part of that group. I was just there at the railings peacefully talking to the cops until a random one walked by behind them and smashed my right hand as hard as he could with his baton for the crime of having it rest on a railing. After that I began pushing the rails, and more started too because they were attacking us first. After that it was just momentum. We were shouting that we'd take back our house and just kept pushing them until they retreated up the stairs to the upper tier above the lawn.

About the same time we heard about the girl in the building who had been killed and that angered even more of us and we pushed harder and drove the cops from their positions guarding the stairs up onto the tier, into the building.

We would have pushed in and occupied the building if it hadn't been for some Deepstate bootlicker stalling our momentum to give us what was essentially a "Surrender" announcement.

Out of curiosity I looked him up on the SEC election donations site, he appears to have been one of us (Conservative) as he this year via WinRed.

I've heard he took a hit with a fire extinguisher to the head from a few sources, but I'd really like to hear the confirmed cause of death.

It's a shame that he died and I pray for his family's comfort, but the cops started the riot by batonning and spraying people who were just standing there calmly. After I had my right hand knuckles and ring finger crushed for just talking to an officer I knew was a soldier and reminding him of his duty to refuse unlawful orders, I got pissed, and so did many others. That's when we started pushing.

So 5 People Died on 1/6? by NaughtLightly

▲ Ghost_Soul167 9 days ago +3 -0

I don't know about that, but I KNOW first hand about the first two incidents I wrote about. The trampled girl I'm not sure about, but that dog pile was horrible. Took 5 minutes to get everyone out and disentangled, and several people were blue as we pulled them out.

If we could have occupied the Capitol, we could have invoked the right given to us in the 2nd paragraph of the Declaration of Independence:

"... it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed."

We would have been in the Seat of Power. All we would need to do is declare our grievances with the government and dissolve the legislature, and replace it with Patriots who were there. Then simply re-adopt the Constitution with amendments added to secure future Federal elections.

good and not think about taking action on your own.

I have to ask, what in the fuck has happened here? How many people can honestly believe that if THE FUCKING POPE was arrested in an overnight raid on 80 counts of human trafficking that a website called the conservative beaver would be the one to break that story? We are slipping folks. by TownesVanCamp

They ALWAYS send advanced parties for things like this. The 4 years I was in the Guard after I left the Army the whole "two weeks a year" thing was bullshit. I'd be gone on advance parties. Several times me and 40 others would go 3 months prior to any big operation. 10 days is very normal for advance.

Pompeo to Speak today by Crockdoc

▼ I really really hope this is something good. His countdown on twitter yesterday may have given me a lot of hopium, especially after seeing troops from Ft. Benning driving up the interstate where I live. This is not something you normally see this time of year in SE TN.

WHERE'S NANCY?! I know we're all delirious on hopium, but this legitimately seems like a big deal. This is your signature move, impeaching the President for a second time and you don't show up for 2 days in a row? I'm about ready to start believing anything at this point! by lovetrumpshat

I can attest for a fact there were WMDs in Iraq. When we took Taji, we spent weeks hauling chemical charges for artillery rounds to disposal. Some kind of nuerotoxin. When my unit was deployed there again in 2008 there were still people occasionally showing up at medical with the kickin chickens because that shit was still in the soil.

M1A Scout Squad, or one of the other variants by Springfield Armory. Very awesome rifle chambered in .308. Not crazy 4k USD expensive, but still pricey. Usually see the scout variant with the walnut stock around 2k, but with composite stock it's cheaper I believe. I like the walnut stock for the extra weight and the beauty.
